DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 12/13/2006 has been entered.

Accordingly, the outstanding prior art rejections over WO 076 are withdrawn since the claims have been amended to positively exclude phenolic compounds, which are taught or by WO 076.

The following is a new ground of rejection:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. patent no. 5,578,740 to Au et al. (Au).

Au teaches that allyl derivative of an active hydrogen-containing compound is prepared by reacting an active hydrogen-containing compound with an allyl carboxylate as the allylating agent in the presence of a catalyst, see column 5, lines 54+. The allyl carboxylate is given at column 4, and the active hydrogen-containing compound includes hydroxyl or thiol containing compounds, see column 8, lines 44+. Suitable catalysts include irridum. In this regard, the difference between the process covered in claim 1 and the process disclosed in Au is that Au fails to explicitly teach iridium so as to amount to anticipation (See M.P.E.P. § 2131: "[t]he identical invention must be shown in as complete detail as is contained in the ... claim." Richardson v. Suzuki Motor Co., 868 F.2d 1226, 1236, 9 USPQ2d 1913, 1920 (Fed. Cir. 1989). The elements must be arranged as required by the claim, but this is not an ipsissimis verbis test, i.e., identity of terminology is not required. In re Bond, 910 F.2d 831, 15 USPQ2d 1566 (Fed. Cir. 1990).). However, based on the above, Au teaches the claimed iridium catalysts with sufficient guidance, particularity, and with a reasonable expectation of success, that the invention would be prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill (the prior art reference teaches or suggests all the claim limitations with a reasonable expectation of success. See M.P.E.P. § 2143).

Claims 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Au in view of "Catalysis" in Kirk-Othmer Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology Copyright © 2001 by John Wiley & Sons, Inc. pp. 200-254 (Kirk Othmer).

Claims 5 and 6 are drawn to organic complexes of the recited iridium catalysts. In this regard, Au fails to explicitly teach theses catalysts. However, it is for this proposition that the examiner joins Kirk Othmer. Specifically, Kirk Othmer teaches that organic complexes of known catalysts are well known and routine, see page 209. Those of ordinary skill would have been motivated to modify the disclosure of Au to include the covered complexes since Kirk Othmer specifically teaches that the chemistry of metal complex catalysis is explained by the bonding and reactivity of organic groups (ligands) bonded to the metals, and specifically, bonding of ligands such as olefin to a transition metal activates them and facilitates the catalysis. Therefore, the rejected claims are prima facie obvious in view of Au in view of Kirk Othmer since these references teach or suggest the elements of these claims with a reasonable expectation of success.

Claim 7 is objected to for dependence on at least one rejected claim, and therefore, would be allowable if re-written in independent form, including all limitations of intervening claims.
